

BLUEBIRD

part of group exhibition COHESION
Warsaw New Theater
2013

One word, the term is an inspiration - a bluebird. I have searched around this term a relationship and meanings related to my experience. The choice was not indifferent, bluebird is a car made by Nissan, which once had my father and for me as a teenager, he was the equivalent of an American car. The name has become a key theme, a trail which I have begun to follow. Elements which I found are separating and researching by me. I am looking into them to find hidden meanings and the feelings that they can cause. On the base of one word I am trying to trace different types of experience which are connecting to the meaning of this one word. I am interested on the issue of naming and the relationship between what is called and a feeling which is caused by a THING. I collect THINGS that for some reason are called BLUEBIRDS

BLUEBIRD in Polish means:

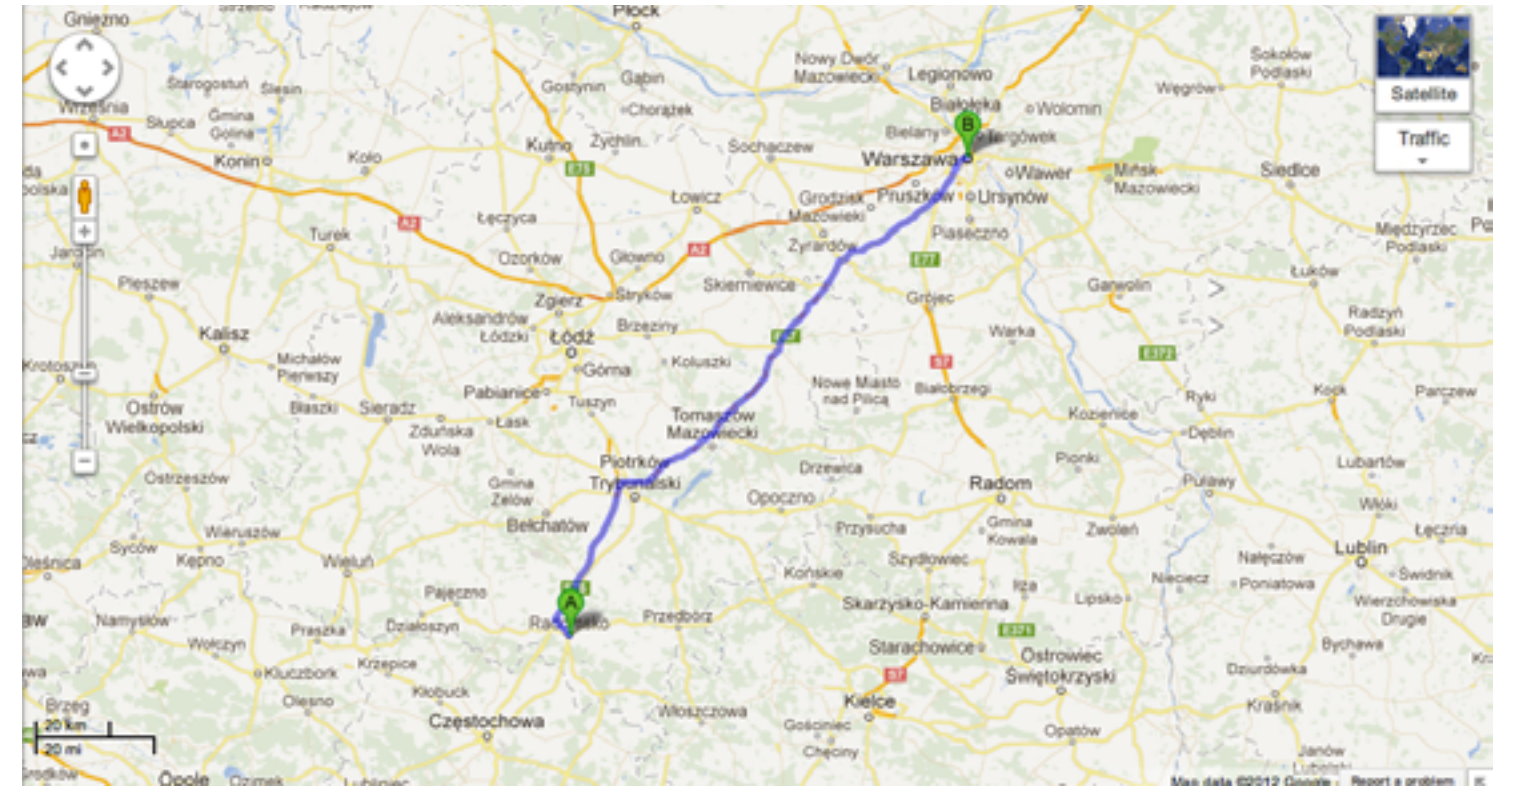

- (1.1) playboy, a parasite, living off the work of others
- (2.1) literally, a bird with blue feathers.

from my collection of bluebirds I chose:

- a play BLUEBIRD by Maurice Maeterlinck
- nissan BLUEBIRD, model from 89-91

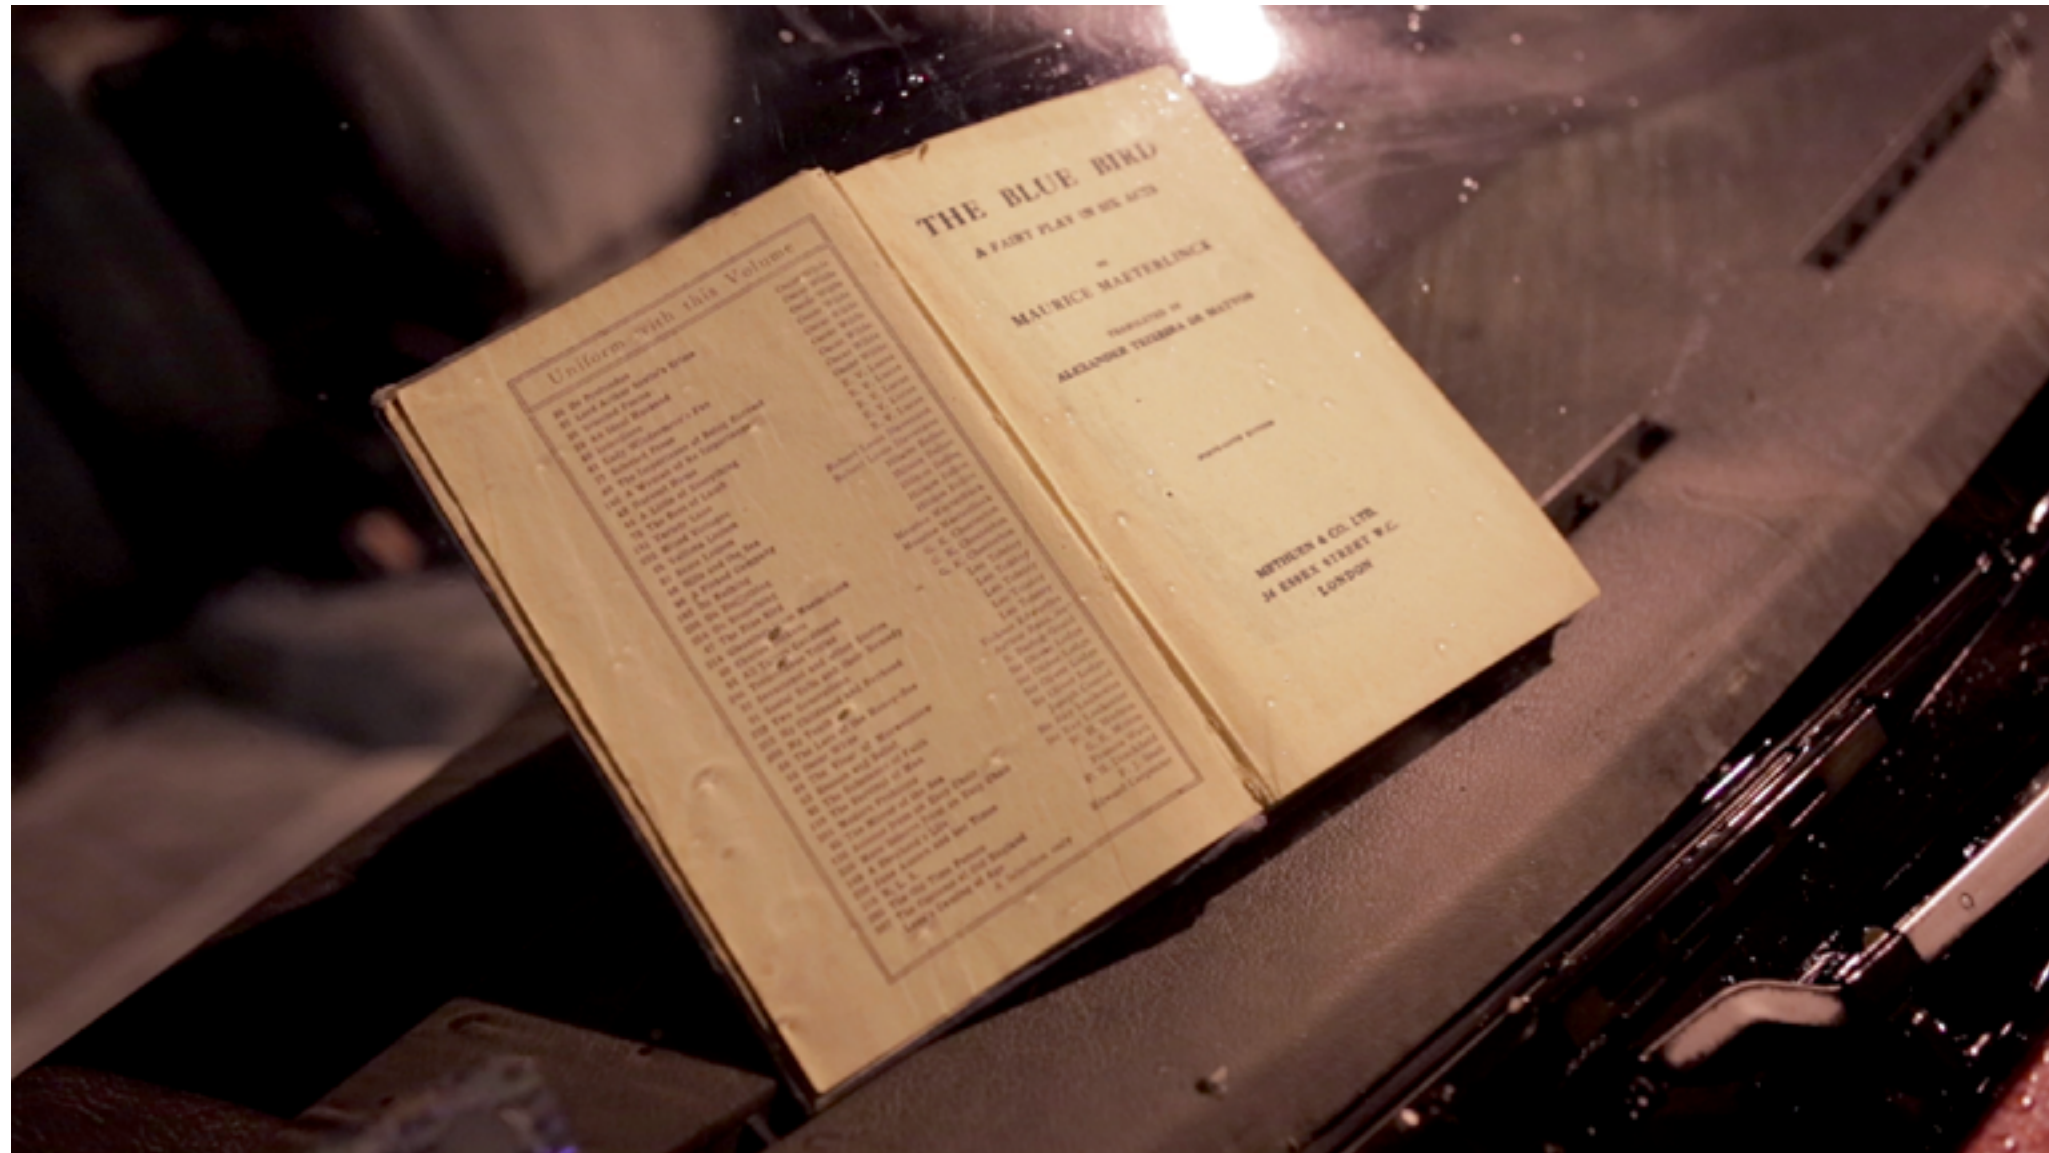

Project in three parts / acts:

1. Trip (from my hometown to Warsaw)
2. Parking (Bluebird was parked on a New Theater parking, inside of the New Theatre building took place an exhibition)
3. Light (Car lights were turned on during the exhibition and directed on the entrance to the theatre)

SYNOPSIS

On a snowy Christmas Eve, Tyltyl and Mytyl sit in their home. During the evening, they lie awake, unable to sleep, when through the window crashes a strange, mercurial magical spirit named Berylune, who reveals that the world we live in isn't the only one there is. And so Tyltyl and Mytyl, accompanied by various spirits, as well as their now-humanoid pets, are led on a journey to find the blue bird of happiness and save little girl, and along the way they visit some strange and wondrous places, and finally, must face the spirit of darkness to attain their elusive goal.

DOCUMENTATION

Documentation is shot by VHS camera (equivalent to the time when car was produced). Video documentation is during editing. Video will be extended by one shot from a studio - which will be kind of statement.
